UConn Master Gardener Susan H. Munger will be here to teach us how to identify invasive plants, and explain how they negatively impact local ecosystems. Susan is the author of Common to This Country: Botanical Discoveries of Lewis & Clark, and is a member of the New London sustainability team.! The program will also touch briefly on native plants and soils. Handouts and a list of resources for further information will be provided.

The program is being offered through the City of New London SustainableCT team, and is free and open to the public. Registration is not required for the event. For more information, visit www.plnl.org or call us at (860) 447-1411 ext 5.
