Black History Month Author Talk with James M. Mosley

New London, CT, February 11, 2017 at 2:00 PM- The Public Library of New London invites the public to attend its Black History Month Author Talk with author James M. Mosley, author of the popular and highly rated Life Under the Microscope as an African-American, an autobiography of an amazing man facing racism and persevering with a positive mindset and accomplishing great feats.

Attendees will have the opportunity to meet the courageous and inspirational James M. Mosley, Retired US Navy Senior Chief Petty Officer, First African-American Medical Corpsman to graduate from the Naval Nuclear Power Engineering School and Connecticut's own Vice President for Legislation for the National Association of Uniform Services (NAUS), and tap into the wealth of wisdom that he has acquired from his many trials and triumphs. Join us Saturday, February 11 from 2:00 PM to 3:30 PM in the library's Community Room. Free admittance. Registration not required.

Book will be available for sale and signing at the event.
